

Reuse Facilities & Programs in . . . CALIFORNIA

Reuse Facilities a Growing Phenomenon?

With the arrival of the new millennium, we are seeing a growing trend in resourcefulness. Now more than ever, communities and their businesses are joining forces to funnel business discards back into the community through materials reuse programs. Valuable materials are being offered to support schools, nonprofits, and community organizations free of charge. Valuable books, equipment, and building materials are just some of the materials being offered to these institutions at little or no cost.

In an effort to increase the awareness of reuse opportunities within the business community, we have profiled several reuse facilities and organizations in California. We hope your business will experience the benefits of becoming involved in a reuse program.
